Norms for Faculty Startups

For better coordination of the entrepreneurial activities, norms for faculty to do startups should be created by the institutes. Only those technologies should be taken for faculty startups which originate from within the same institute.

In case the faculty/ staff holds the executive or managerial position for more than three months in a startup, they will go on sabbatical/ leave without pay/ utilize existing leave.

Faculty must clearly separate and distinguish on-going research at the institute from the work conducted at the startup/ company.

Faculty must not accept gifts from the startup.

Faculty must not involve research staff or other staff of institute in activities at the startup and vice-versa.

Scope of Claims

- As the value of a patent depends largely upon the scope of the claims, special care is necessary to ensure that the claims are drafted to include neither more nor less than what the applicant desires to protect by his patent.
- Claims must not be too extensive so as to embrace more than what the applicant has in fact invented. A claim, which is too wide, encroaches upon the subject matter, which may be in public domain or belong to others.
- However a claim must not be too narrow also because such a claim would not be sufficiently effective in preventing infringement of the patent. An infringer would go scot-free, if the claim were too narrow and , hence, the full benefit of invention may not accrue to the inventor.

Features and Characteristics of Claims:

- a “statement of claims” preceded by the prescribed preamble, “I or we claim” as the case may be
- Claims should start from the fresh page after full description
- There is no restriction to the number of claims
- A claim (s) of a complete specification shall relate to a single invention, or to a group of inventions
- A claim must be specific and not vague, ambiguous, speculative or hypothetical in nature.
- Claims must be supported by the description (fairly based on the description).
- In addition, any term, which is used in the claims, must be either found in the description or clearly inferred from the description
